

Message from Dr. William F. Hogue
Vice President for Information Technology and Chief Information Officer,
University of South Carolina

“For those of us who love Carolina, the historic Horseshoe is sacred ground.

Millions of students, faculty, staff, parents, and friends of the University of South Carolina have walked these beautiful pathways for over two centuries.

It’s a place to see the world around us with fresh eyes, and to come to deeper understandings about what it means to be human.

For Carolinians in the 21st century – the digital world is front and center.

Beneath this hallowed ground - miles of fiber optic cables move encyclopedic volumes of data - every moment of every day.

Information is everywhere. The very air around us is filled with wireless transmissions as people like you who are here for a day – or for a lifetime – access the data they need from sources all over the world.

Take a few moments to explore Carolina’s rich array of digital resources – whether online or in person.

And let us know what you think. Carolina’s greatness has always been the restless energy and creative spirit of its people.

And that’s true now more than ever.

Come - join us - as we build digital Carolina for the 21st century.”
